NON-LINEAR INCARNATIONS

ATLANTIS

THE SOULS OF THOSE WHO WERE IN ATLANTIS

THE BERMUDA TRIANGLE

Prior to the Meeting, Sohrab spoke on two diverse topics: Atlantis and new systems for studying the Akashic records when in spirit. This discussion gave rise to several questions, like:

“Can you please tell us something more about Atlantis?”

“How long does it take for a departed soul to be ready to study the Akashic records?”

“Can you incarnate again before you have done so?”

“Does one incarnated aspect of the soul, when it returns to spirit, in any way affect the others that are still in incarnations?”

Greetings!

Your lifetimes can be likened to investments. You (the Higher Soul) are the Master investor who puts portions of his money in diverse Mutual Funds, Stocks and shares. Each individual investment could be equated to a lifetime or a dimensional aspect of the self.

At various points in time, you may choose to redeem one investment in a singular

Mutual Fund, perhaps because it is not yielding you the desired return. You rarely, if ever, redeem all your investments at the same time.

The redeemed money has to be re-evaluated, and you then learn from that experience and re-think how you would like to invest it again. At the same time, it gives you a better insight into your overall financial strategy. It would also influence how you now treat all your other investments; even those that are doing well and yielding returns.

So, when an incarnated aspect of the higher soul returns to spirit, it will, at some point, review its Akashic records. Some may take years (from an earthly perspective) to do so, because they do need to reach the required level of energetic objectivity to be ready for this.

Now remember, incarnations are not linear. You are still thinking of them from a 3-D earthly perspective of a person returning to spirit and that same 'body of energy' reincarnating.

This portion of the higher soul may not yet be ready to study the Akashic records, and therefore not be ready to reincarnate; yet another portion of the higher soul may be ready to do so, and may agree to hold certain memories of the prior person for growth and resolution. The higher soul is fluid; not solid and separate as you are in physical form. One portion spills into the other. After all, it's all YOU.

You have heard of cases in which a young child insists that he recently 'died', and accurately identifies who he was and where he lived. The prior soul's death and this child's birth may even be a few weeks apart. This need not be the exact same soul; but it is one which is in full link with the other soul and carries his memories and recollections, to possibly complete a certain task or to resolve something which will benefit both the prior soul and this one.

(A note from Sohrab: As I am transcribing this, I am being further shown that it could also be the very same soul portion. He could have returned to spirit, spent years there, studied his Akashic records and then return to an Earth timeline of just a few days after his prior death. Again, we have to remember that time is not linear. You can jump backwards and forwards in time, at will.)

Now, you can ‘liquidate all your assets in one shot’. The higher soul, on rare occasions, does retract every single incarnated part of the self in various simultaneous lifetimes and dimensions. This only occurs when the higher soul desires a complete restructure of the self. But this is extremely rare.

Even an incarnated Grand Master, like a Jesus or a Buddha, generally returns to his higher soul in the normal way, without all his other incarnated parts returning at the same time.

Now let us tie this discussion to Atlantis. When the final cataclysm took place, an entire civilization was wiped out in the figurative ‘blink of an eye’.

How did this happen? Those in position of power: priests and priestesses, Government officials, scientists and the like...irresponsibly overused the Mother Crystal. In doing so, they unwittingly overdosed on Her energies. Their brain pathways got corrupted. They turned schizophrenic in a manner you cannot begin to imagine. They began to behave irrationally. They are the ones who caused complete chaos, and brought about the downfall of a magnificent civilization.

You might choose to justify this by saying that it wasn’t their fault, as the crystalline energies affected their brains, and they didn’t know what they were doing. But the responsibility was theirs, because of their initial energetic greed and supreme arrogance.

If a bottle of alcohol is placed before you, you have the option of having a few drinks and thoroughly enjoying yourself; or you can choose to get completely drunk and possibly behave in a vicious and destructive manner. The alcohol is not at fault; you are.

As the cataclysm occurred, all the hundreds of thousands of traumatized souls exited in a rush; causing a disturbed and chaotic energetic vortex. Remember, most were already energetically fragmented to begin with, and then they added to it the terror they experienced in the last few moments.

This vortex of chaos was therefore created in the area you now call The Bermuda Triangle. This vortex created rifts in the time/space continuum, which subsequently led to so many inexplicable disappearances in the future. This was not a part of Earth's plan, but all actions lead to consequences.

So what happened to all the people who disappeared here? And were they, in some way, connected to Atlantis in the past?

These rifts are of different kinds. Some rifts took the people into a different timeline, in which they would have continued to live out their normal lifespan, as they were unable to return to the 'present'. They could, for example, have suddenly found themselves in the 18th century.

Other rifts took the people into a different dimension of earth, yet others moved people into a different society somewhere else in the Universe. A few rifts did indeed take them into spaces of energetic frequencies in which the human form cannot exist. They would have instantly dematerialized and returned to spirit.

However, anyone who has vanished or will, in the future, vanish in the Bermuda Triangle, has a specific past-life connection with Atlantis, Lemuria or Mu. Most have been a part of the corruption of that era.

Their disappearance is certainly not 'punishment for past misdeeds'. They are choosing to experience this transformation in an attempt to re-align their disturbed energies; ones they still carry in this lifetime.

You already know that instruments on airplanes and ships often malfunction while they are navigating this area. But what you don't know is that every person who passes through this region safely also undergoes some form of an internal transformation. Their brain pathways are subtly altered, sometimes causing minor, almost unnoticeable, changes in personality traits, behavioral patterns and thought-processes. No human who sails through this area, and returns safely, is exempt from this process.

Now let us speak of Atlantis from a perspective not usually addressed: the return of the Atlantean Soul to the spirit realm.

When they returned, en masse, they did so through an energetic vortex of their own traumatic creation. The spirit realm made preparations for this influx of disturbed souls; just as you would on earth if your country is aware that it is suddenly going to have to host a large influx of traumatized refugees from another country.

“Spirit Camps” were set up, and the Atlantean souls were individually directed to the most appropriate camp for the self. The camps were designed to facilitate instantaneous and intensive healing. This process, in earth time, took hundreds of years, because their energies were so disturbed, convoluted and fragmented. Many almost fragmented at the soul level.

Think about this. Imagine a particular higher soul, who always resides in the spirit realm, possibly having hundreds of thousands of its aspects incarnated in different timelines and dimension. Only one of its multiple strands may have been incarnated in Atlantis. Yet this singular strand could have been so contaminated that it would, and could, have affected the Higher Soul and all its other incarnated aspects. This could not be permitted.

So these “Spirit Camps” served as quarantine areas as well, and were energetically protected at a very high level. Most of the souls here were initially put into stasis; a healing sleep of great depth. Many souls required decades of repair and revitalization, before they were functional again.

One by one, the various souls awoke and were then allocated a group of Masters who slowly helped them with ‘spirit therapy’ and the realignment of the self.

At the same time, energetic countermeasures to this debacle had to be put into place on Earth, so that the existing inhabitants would not be overly affected by this energetic cataclysm.

The crystalline bed of Atlantis (which has, over the last decade, begun to pulsate again) was put into stasis as well. Its energies could have affected others living on Earth in the same way that the Atlanteans were.

Universal friends came in teams (the Arcturians, the Pladeans, and the Ashtaar Command, to name a few) to safeguard those on Earth and to shield them from the energetic radiation of the Atlanteans, who were now in spirit, but were still in such trauma and chaos. These Universal friends ‘inoculated’ the people of Earth, to prevent the spread of a mass energetic epidemic.

Masters also arrived in large groups, to counsel and guide those on Earth, urging them to be energetically responsible in the future, so that this kind of cataclysm would never again occur.

Because of the interventions of these Masters, Guides and Universal friends, Planet Earth continues to exist today. Had they not, Earth would have eventually imploded. Such was the power of the Mother Crystal, fuelled by the warped and contaminated consciousness of the Atlanteans.

Dear Friends, this is a singular lesson for humanity. Most of you are descendants of the peoples of Atlantis, Lemuria and Mu. You have also had many incarnations in these societies.

So understand that you still have the energetic propensity, coded into your cells, to go wayward like your ancestors did. But you also have awareness, knowledge, free-will, spiritual savvy and THE ABILITY TO CHOOSE OTHERWISE.

Mankind has often reverted to its Atlantean folly: during the Spanish Inquisition and the Hitlerian Era, for example. The self-destructive genes coded into your bodies came to the surface during these times. And it continues to do so with terrorism today, and with those who believe in mass genocide. It continues with those who want to press a button and start a nuclear war.

But you also have higher levels of awareness and self-realization than your Atlantean ancestors. You can choose to act differently.

LORD SANNANDA BLESSES YOU.

THE ASHTAAR COMMAND BLESSES YOU.

BE IN LIGHT.
