Greetings!

Today, we would once again like to address the topic of death. You may wonder why we are re-visiting this aspect, when we have spoken of it so many times in the past. Of course there is always a reason. We would like to give you some additional information about this aspect of life. (Smiling) Yes, life.

You may recall that, at the beginning of this year, we had said that there would be many passages taking place this year: some expected, and others unexpected. This was because various universal energy portals were opening up around Planet Earth, offering people the opportunity to accelerate their spirit progress, should they choose to enter these portals. Because of this, many who might have exited a few years in the future chose instead to avail of this magnificent opportunity.

This process has been so successful that the energies of these wormholes have now been extended into the next year, and have also been intensified. You may therefore witness even more exits in the future.

We urge you to bear this in mind, and not to 'feel sorry' for those who choose to exit this year or the next. They are using this opportunity to further their own expansion.

Up to now, some chose the 'expressway', and others went through the normal processes of a passage. But starting from the period of Dassera onwards, almost everyone who chooses to exit during the next 6-8 months will be entering a very high-vibrational wormhole of some form.

It may interest you to know these wormholes will merge with the traditional 'tunnel of light'. So those who exit will indeed enter the golden-light embrace of their own higher-soul energies; and at the same time will enter a wormhole chosen by them. This will offer them a dose of extremely high vibrations; one which they would not have otherwise received.

When they emerge in the spirit realm, having passed through the tunnel of light and having received these new wormhole frequencies, most will not even need the traditional 'healing sleep'. Most will have shed their debris, pain, confusion, earthly bonds, and so on. They will therefore be ready, virtually instantly, to embrace growth in the spirit realm.

We share this with you so that, instead of feeling sorry for them, you choose to respect, honour and applaud them for having chosen this accelerated process of personal evolution.

Please allow yourselves to mourn your loss. That is natural, healthy and normal. But mourn for your loss; do not feel sorry for the person who has chosen this magnificent exit. This applies equally to a child or an old person.

Questions?

Aren't many people going to choose to move into the 5th dimension?

This includes that process. Certain wormholes are inter-dimensional ones. Each person will assess, at a higher-soul level, prior to his exit, the kind of wormhole he desires for the self. Some people are even making a conscious choice.

Now let us speak a little more about what happens before a person enters the tunnel of light. When a person is readying himself for an exit, at a higher-conscious level of course, he invites several spirit teams to serve him at his point of passage.

There is a mistaken notion that you meet your loved ones, guides and friends only after you have passed through the tunnel of light. Yes, you do; but they are very present at your point of exit as well. It is just that you are generally not receptive enough to recognize their presence.

So you actually pre-decide who would be the most appropriate to serve you at that point in time, and actually help in lifting you out of your physical body. In general, this choice is made prior to your exit; but you keep adding to it until the last moment.

You may, for example, have demanded years in advance that your beloved Master be with you at your point of exit; and just days before you depart you may also demand the additional presence of several other friends who are now in the spirit realm.

Many of you have fears that your loved ones may have already reincarnated, or be 'busy' with spirit work, and will not be there for you. This is a misnomer.

Every reincarnated soul's essence is always in the spirit realm. And even if a spirit is 'busy', he can multi-task effortlessly, and always be there for you.

So these loved ones will put down frequencies at the appropriate moment and temporarily attach themselves to you. This will create such a high vibration in your physical structure that your soul is then easily 'lifted out' of the body.

These friends could include Masters and Guides, loved ones who have already passed over, loved ones from other lifetimes of whom you have no conscious knowledge, as well as abstract energies that please you, such as the energies of music, technology or science.

You draw these varying frequencies into your cellular structure. The cells then start to vibrate at a very high level, freeing the soul from the dense physical body. You then intensify these vibrations. The soul is then gently lifted out of the body, cradled by these friendly energies, and lead into the tunnel of light.

How important is the method of disposal of the body, considering the fact that the soul has now left it?

From our perspective, what you choose to do with the body is completely immaterial and irrelevant. But we have always said that it would be best to respect the desire of the person himself.

This is because, even when you have left the body, a portion of you still remains as an observer. This portion is still emotionally attached to the body. And if his body is not disposed of in a manner that he has chosen, this can cause an energetic disturbance in his structure; one that may create unnecessary energetic ripples.

Even when a person dies in war or in an explosion, it is still best to try and dispose of the remains, at a later date, in the manner the person desired. But if this cannot be done, it really doesn't matter. This is because they are energetically counseled along the way and speedily learn that the body is but a husk.

What of prayers for the dead?

These offer the person pleasurable vibrations. If a person is attuned to a certain kind of prayer that is meaningful to him, then these would naturally please him the most. It is exactly like listening to a piece of music that really resonates with you, rather than something to which you are indifferent.

The energy of prayer uplifts the spirit. But if a person dies in battle, or in the middle of a desert, and there is no one there to pray for him, never feel that he is abandoned. His various soul friends, whom he has invited to lift him out of his body, will offer him spirit prayers. So he does not 'miss out' on earthly prayers that you would have otherwise generated.

Does this also apply to those who are murdered, or commit suicide?

Yes indeed, because, as you well know, even murder is a pre-planned choice made by the so-called victim. Even suicide, which may not be pre-planned, is still a choice.

Even if the suicide is a spur-of-the-moment decision, there is still a split-second time-lag between the choice and the act itself. Since ‘time’ in our realm is so different to yours, this split-second is enough for the person to invite all his Masters, guides and friends to come and aid him in his release process.

So there is always a choice, and always a group in attendance. The only exception to this rule would be the death of a human clone. But you have not been successful in the creation of this, and never will be.

Now let us speak of death in a slightly different way, by sharing with you some new choices you are now able to make. The human race has modified it once again.

The first we will amusingly refer to as a ‘daily-deposit scheme’. As you well know, you extend a portion of your higher soul into an incarnation of your choice, to undergo certain experiences and to grow from that. In the past, when you shed the incarnation and returned to the embrace of the higher soul, you took with you all your various experiences, and fed it into the higher soul.

This system has recently been upgraded. What you are doing now is dying a little every day. You are now banking your experiences with your higher soul on a day-to-day basis. This could be likened to making a daily deposit of your wages into the bank, instead of a lump-sum deposit at the end of the month.

This ‘daily deposit scheme’ has opened up a new and more powerful channel between you and your higher soul. You have always been linked to your higher soul, but the current frequency of this link is now much stronger. Energies are now flowing between the two aspects of the self very powerfully. And this channel is now so wide open that you must take advantage of this flow.

You are very freely banking upwards and outwards; but how about receiving the information and guidance that your higher soul is now offering you, on a moment-to-moment basis, with great potency and clarity? This does not require deep meditation. It is an easy, moment-to-moment process of just ‘listening to the voice at the other end of the telephone line’.

Now that the telephone line is so open, can others interfere with our processes?

The line is a secure one, but it is not sealed. Therefore the information flowing inward and outward is entirely coded by you, and this code cannot be broken. But the energies flowing are so vibrant that they will only permit input from an external source if they are either of your frequency, or higher. Therefore, the only input you could receive from another would be of your vibrational level, or higher. Never lower.

Those who aspire to vibrancy and expansion benefit greatly from this process. But a dense person, who is filled with violence and hatred, will most definitely receive coding from others in a similar situation. This could take them further down a path of self-destruction. This is why extremism is intensifying right now, and those who are on the path of self-search are feeling very strongly urged to resolve old issues, grow and expand.

Some of the information given today has been spoken of before. Why is it necessary to repeat it?

This is for two reasons. Firstly, there are certain people in this room who are hearing this for the first time, and need to hear it today. Secondly, those who are here and have heard it before need to be reminded of it for a specific reason. They have either forgotten it, or they need to examine it in their lives right now.

So does this mean that the process of death has now become easier?

Yes, it is becoming smoother and more streamlined.

The next aspect of death we wish to speak of is this. Many people are using the tunnel of light as a diving-board, propelling themselves through it to different destinations, and not just to the spirit realm.

Some, for example, are choosing to move through it directly into another, higher-vibrational incarnation.

Others are choosing to use the tunnel to disperse their energies throughout the Universe. This is a new option, and has rarely been offered to the human race in the past. Those who did avail of this option were grand Masters in human form, such as the Maha Avatar Babaji, the Sai and the Mother Theresa.

This is now becoming a viable option for some humans who already have very high vibrations. This is one of the most glorious choices a person could make. It is an adventure; a process of not retaining the higher soul as a definitive entity, but instead of dispersing it throughout the Universe as points of light and consciousness.

With this choice, you become an aspect of the Universal Web: points of consciousness that just flow free. Here, you really experience the Universe by becoming the Universe.

But this choice is never made lightly. This is because, once the choice is made, it cannot be reversed. You will then never again incarnate. This is not ‘the ultimate’; but it is very close to it.

Each point of light, which is still ‘you’, will experience a different facet of the Universe. And each point of light is joined by this consciousness, not only to each other, but to the Universe itself.

This choice cannot be made lightly. It has to be with the consent of the higher soul and all the Masters and Guides with whom you are connected. A new, yet valid choice.

So your vibration has to be very high, even on planet Earth, to be able to make this choice?

Yes indeed. You have all known of cases in which very evolved souls seem to be senselessly lingering on Planet Earth, even when they are old, sick and appear to be ‘ready to go’. They may be people who are working at breakneck speed to raise their vibrations before departure, in order to be able to propel themselves into this kind of future expansion. From their perspective, a few more weeks or months of Earthly suffering is so insignificant, in comparison to an eternity of Universal consciousness.

So if I, in one incarnation, make this choice, what happens to my other incarnated aspects?

An excellent question! This has to be a unanimous decision made by all your simultaneous and concurrent selves. And to facilitate this, all these aspects have to choose to exit their respective existences within seconds of each other. This has to happen, as there will no longer be a higher soul to govern them.

How is a person affected when loved ones choose to 'pull the plug' on them and remove life-support?

In general, you have to tune-in. But please understand that no matter what choice you make, it really has been made by the higher soul of the person in question. When you sit down and battle your conscience, this is part of your growth and evolution.

But there really can be no error. Let us say that decide to pull the plug, and the soul is not ready to depart. You will either be energetically prevented from doing so, or the person will simply live on without life-support.

This doesn't mean that you don't question yourself. This process is vital, as it brings up so much for personal reviewal.

So you are saying that everything you observe or experience has a meaning in your life?

Yes. At your current level of evolution, aren't you now far more aware of occurrences and experiences in your life than you were a few years ago? Don't you find the way you think about things now very different? Today, when you contract a disease, don't you question the emotional aspect behind it? And when something major happens in your life, don't you find yourself asking why you have created it?

When you walk upon the street, there are hundreds of 'events' taking place around you. You cannot tune into all of them. But each person tunes into those which are necessary for his evolution at that moment in time. The ones you don't need, you won't see.

So we need to constantly observe and self-analyze?

Yes. And you also have to learn when not to do so, or when to just ‘let something go’. Everything is not meant to be deeply analyzed. People who over analyze tend to draw to themselves an overwhelming series of experiences and sensations. This is to deliberately provoke them to learn to pick and choose.

A rule of thumb: if something small happens to you (for example, you stub your toe), just let it go. If, however, you do it twice or thrice, you need to look at it. Are you resisting taking a step in life? What are you hesitant to look at or deal with?

Let us now speak of one more aspect today, before we end. There is another choice that has been made in the past on rare occasions, and is now becoming fairly common. This is to enter the tunnel of light and then to choose to place portions of your current consciousness into different parts of your simultaneously incarnated selves.

When you enter the tunnel of light, you are always connected not only with your higher soul, but with all parts of your concurrent and simultaneous existences. So you might say to the self, “There are three parts of the self that need a boost in consciousness, and I have the ability to facilitate this, so why not infuse them with my energies right now?”

With this choice, when you exit the tunnel of light, you do not enter the spirit realm, but instead infuse yourself back into those three ‘living’ aspects, by placing one-third of your energies in each one.

The moment you infuse these three parts with your current energies, there is an instantaneous and dramatic rise in their consciousness. This process can be likened to that of a walk-in; except that you are walking into an aspect of yourself.

Each aspect will have a personality change to a certain degree. Each will also act and behave in a slightly different manner. A perennial victim, for example, may suddenly find herself capable of standing up to oppressors, speaking out and holding her ground.

But this has to be carefully done, because a complete change of personality would not be appropriate for that incarnated aspect; but an energetic boost would. So you carefully regulate how you infuse the aspect with the current ‘you’. You might activate some of your current awareness and knowledge, and keep some dormant, which you will activate at a future date.

Now you may wonder, “Why would I choose to do this for those aspects of the self? Why wouldn’t I just choose to enter the spirit realm, and allow those portions of the self to grow and evolve at their own pace?”

This is because, when you are in the tunnel of light, the merger between the current self and all your concurrent existences is so strong that you do not experience any separation. You are all one.

When there is no ‘them’ and ‘me’ and you are truly united, and one portion of the ‘me’ needs help and guidance, how can you not give it? This is a beautiful choice that many are now making to speed up their entire evolutionary process.

Can you please give us an example?

Let us say that an evolved person passes over; one who has lived a very expanded, high-vibrational existence on Earth. Now, when he is in the tunnel of light and observes a few portions of the self that are rather dense, he might very well choose to offer his current potency to them, so that all his incarnated aspects ‘rise up’ collectively.

This is also because there is a current trend amongst all Universal beings to evolve faster and faster. So, from the soul’s point of view, this choice is simply a short detour; one which helps in its overall evolutionary process.

Is this process happening for animals as well?

Yes, it is. But for animals it is not about resolving issues, but instead to work with overall emotions. An evolved animal might choose to do this to aid a portion of the self that is, for example, fear-filled or excessively aggressive.

In humans, does this always lead to an upgrade? What if you place a portion of the self in another aspect that is very depressed? Could that part not drag you down?

In this case, with this choice, there can never be a backward slide. There may be resistance on the part of the incarnated aspect that delays the process; but it must always result in a positive outcome, as your energies are higher than those of the part into which you have entered.

Dear friends, we have only shared a few new choices. There are many others, which we will speak of at a future date.

YOU ARE BLESSED AND EMBRACED BY THE ENERGIES OF THE
